Don't be fooled by fraud.

A GUIDE TO PROTECTING YOUR HARD-EARNED MONEY.

Investing can be part of a healthy financial future, providing you with greater personal freedom, a healthy retirement, a sense of security or the ability to afford the things you want in life.

Investment fraud can jeopardize those goals, but there are ways that you can protect yourself. This book is one tool to help you build a stronger financial future.

To stop it, you need to understand it.

Investment scams are a dime a dozen, but did you know that many fraudsters follow a series of steps that are easy to identify if you know what to look for? It's a playbook of sorts — while the scam may look different on the surface, the plays are mostly the same.

WANT TO KEEP YOUR MONEY SAFE? Discover the steps fraudsters rely on and learn how to help your friends, family and yourself stay clear from investment fraud.

Before you read on,
remember:

No one cares more about your money than you.

Investments are a great way to grow your wealth over time, and having a financial plan, knowing how to talk to advisers and doing your research are important steps to achieving that (for more information on how, visit CheckFirst.ca). Without a plan, you may be exposed to fraudsters who will exploit your fears or anxieties. Always take the time to research and verify any investment or product.

Anyone can be a target.

Regardless of age, investment knowledge or level of wealth, fraudsters apply their playbook strategy to anyone whose trust they think they can win. In addition to using email, phone calls, social media and other channels, fraudsters may exploit people you know so they unintentionally bring the scam to you, which is why doing your own research is key to wise investment decisions.

Identify.
Avoid.
Prevent.

This playbook contains seven key steps that every fraudster takes to identify targets, gain their trust, and ultimately, steal their money. First, learn what they do. Then identify what you can do to protect yourself and prevent others from being scammed.

Report it!

Fraudsters work quickly with their investment scams. Whether you think you were offered an investment opportunity that could be a scam, notice a friend or family member that may be in trouble, or you or someone you know lost money to fraud, don't keep it to yourself. Report your suspicions to the authorities – at any stage. You can help stop fraudsters and save someone else from being a victim in the future.

Fraudster's Playbook Steps

What's lurking behind those smiles and their smooth sales pitch? These seven steps take you inside the mind of a scammer and their schemes.

STEP ONE:

Identify potential victim(s) for the scam

What THEY do:

- Capitalize on current events, trends, and economic downturns to uncover potentially vulnerable targets.
- Identify targets by leveraging common fears or anxieties like unemployment, insufficient retirement savings and FOMO (fear of missing out) on a money-making opportunity.
- Initiate communication through online ads, emails, phone calls, letters or in-person interaction at community or group events — which may include using friends or family as camouflage for a scam.

What YOU can do:

- Be cautious around investment opportunities based on current events or trends.
- Be aware that emotional investing based on fears or anxieties without a financial plan can make you vulnerable to fraudsters — stick to your financial plan.
- Remember that money invested in an uncertain or higher risk opportunity should only be money you can afford to lose.
- Be wary of any communication or individuals you don't know who approach you with opportunities, or try to get close to you too quickly.
- Know that financial decisions that are right for your friends and family may not be right for you.

STEP TWO:

Befriend and earn trust

What THEY do:

- Cultivate quick friendships with the target, communities or groups.
- Develop trust through rapidly evolving friendships and frequent contact.
- Use respected members in a group to facilitate introductions.
- Begin providing advice to establish a reputation as a reliable resource and authority.

What YOU can do:

- Create boundaries for your personal finances and private matters, whether that's at work, at family gatherings or even at a place of worship.
- Be wary of new friends or acquaintances that take an immediate interest in your financial wellbeing.
- Don't automatically trust a new acquaintance that comes through a friend, family member or community.

STEP THREE:

Drop hints or showcase the benefit of an “investment” opportunity

What THEY do:

- Flaunt wealth and success while openly and frequently talking about how it was achieved.
- Casually mention the opportunity and its high returns with little to no risk.
- Provide “returns” to a few early investors, such as your friends or family, to support their claims.

What YOU can do:

- Do not let the showcasing or promise of wealth impress you — it may not be real, or it may be funded by money stolen from others.
- Wealth achieved through high-return investments with little to no risk is the BIG red flag of investment fraud. Stay away from anything like this.
- Do not easily accept your friends’ or family’s claims that they researched the investment.
- Research any investment opportunity to make sure it is legitimate and right for your investment goals. Keep to your plan!
- Check the registration and enforcement history of the individual or firm at CheckFirst.ca to ensure they are legally allowed to offer the investment .

STEP FOUR:

Offer the investment opportunity

What THEY do:

- Tap into the fears or interests of the target so that they feel a personal connection to the investment.
- Create a sense of urgency or intimacy to make the offer more attractive through:
 - Time-sensitive offers — restricts your ability to research the opportunity/gives you less time to talk it over with those you trust.
 - Exclusive offers/insider tips — secrecy increases appeal and discourages you from discussing with others who might ask questions.
 - Guaranteed high returns with little to no risk — appeals to those who are risk-averse but want bigger returns.
 - Offshore and tax-free investments — to avoid legitimate taxes on capital gains from investments.
 - Personal connections — using friends or family to make the investment opportunity seem safe and appealing.
 - Celebrity endorsements — creates immediate trust, whether the celebrity is involved or not.

What YOU can do:

- Be wary of any friend, acquaintance or new contact who tries to sell you an investment based on your financial circumstances or anxieties.
- Recognize that the offer could either come from a face-to-face connection, or that you may never see the person trying to get your money. Fraud works both ways.
- Know how to identify the red flags of investment fraud at CheckFirst.ca. If someone is offering you an investment that sounds too good to be true, it usually is.
- Always do your own research, no matter who recommends the investment.
- Check the registration and enforcement history of the individual or firm offering the investment at CheckFirst.ca, and instruct your friends and family to do the same. It takes a few minutes and could save you thousands of dollars and emotional stress.
- Contact the ASC if you feel you or someone you know could potentially be involved with an investment scam. Better to be safe than sorry.

STEP FIVE:

Receive money for the investment

What THEY do:

- Frequently communicate with the potential target until money is handed over for the so-called “investment”.
- Provide paperwork with unclear and confusing information that makes the investment look legitimate but hard to validate.
- Make themselves available and respond quickly to ensure the target does not get cold feet.

What YOU can do:

- Be skeptical of anyone demanding your money immediately for an investment — do not allow yourself to be rushed into any investment.
- Do not sign anything you do not understand or haven’t read in full.
- Make sure to review contracts and paperwork thoroughly for red flags and inconsistencies.
- ALWAYS check the registration and enforcement history of any individual or firm offering you an investment opportunity before handing over your hard-earned money.
 - By law, anyone selling investments must almost always be registered in the province they are selling in. If they claim they are offering the investment under an exemption, use the Contact Us page on CheckFirst.ca. We can help you understand what an exemption is and if it is valid in this circumstance.
- Review the investment with a trusted person not involved in the investment, like a lawyer, an accountant or your financial adviser.
- Do not invest until you have done your research and have satisfactory answers to all your questions.

STEP SIX:

Disappear (the Ghosting Act)

What THEY do:

- Refuse to give money back to the target when requested, or according to a previously agreed upon schedule, and provide excuses for why it is inaccessible 'at the moment.'
- Reassure the target that money will be available at a later date and that the investment is solid.
- Request additional investment money for the supposed long-term benefit of the investment.
- Ignore the target and stop responding to inquiries if they continue to ask for their money back, or ask for more details.

What YOU can do:

- Do not provide any additional money to the individual or firm if you have any concerns.
- Collect all the information, paperwork and relevant details of the investment and the individual or firm offering it to you.
- Contact the ASC right away if you suspect something is not right with your investment, and provide all documentation you have to help us with our investigation.
- Share what is going on with you with a trusted family member or friend — do not isolate yourself. Reach out for support.

STEP SEVEN:

Target the victim again (the Recovery Act)

What THEY do:

- Sell the victim's information to another fraudster or criminal organization.
- Contact the victim and offer to reclaim the investment through a lawsuit or other means for a fee.
- Incentivize the victim with inflated price offers for the investment they own, but charge a fee labelled as taxes or a service fee.
- Disappear once the victim provides more money.

What YOU can do:

- Do not be fooled by recovery agencies or individuals who contact you saying they can recover your money for a fee.
 - Credible agencies and organizations like the ASC, police services and the RCMP will never ask you for money to continue investigations or retrieve your money.
- Do not be fooled by anyone with a vested interest in your "investment" — paying any money to sell your own "shares" or recover your own investment is a BIG red flag.
- Report anyone contacting you after being defrauded to the ASC.

Don't take anything at face value.

PART OF A HEALTHY FINANCIAL FUTURE MEANS
DOING YOUR RESEARCH BEFORE YOU INVEST.

Congratulations on learning the seven steps of the fraudster's playbook. If you understand these steps, you'll be able to recognize and avoid scams and be able to take action no matter the situation you find yourself in.
